ATHILL, DIANA. Instead of a Book Written in an even more vivid and direct style than her celebrated memoirs, Diana Athill's letters to the American poet Edward Field reveal a sharply intelligent woman with a brilliant sense of humour, a keen eye for the absurd, a fierce loyalty and a passionate zest for life. This intimate correspondence spanning thirty years covers her final years as an editor at Andre Deutsch, her retirement and immersion in her own writing, her growing fame and encroaching old age, and gives a fascinating insight into a life fully lived. Edited, selected and introduced by Diana Athill, and annotated with her own delightful notes, this funny, revealing and immensely readable collection will bring enormous pleasure to her many thousands of readers.	12
ATKINSON, KATE. Case Histories The first of Kate Atkinson's books featuring Jackson Brodie, former police inspector turned private investigator. Surrounded by death, intrigue and misfortune, his own life haunted by a family tragedy, Brodie attempts to unravel three disparate case histories and begins to realise that in spite of apparent diversity, everything is connected... ATWOOD, MARGARET. The Blind Assassin Laura Chase's older sister Iris, married at eighteen to a politically prominent industrialist but now poor and eighty-two, is living in Port Ticonderoga, a town dominated by their once-prosperous family before the First War. While coping with her unreliable body, Iris reflects on her far from exemplary life, in particular the events surrounding her sister's tragic death. Chief among these was the publication of The Blind Assassin, a novel which earned the dead Laura Chase not only notoriety but also a devoted cult following. A World Book Night title. Historical fiction	5
ATWOOD, MARGARET. The Handmaid's tale The Republic of Gilead offers Offred only one option: to breed, if she deviates, she will, like all dissenters, be hanged at the wall or sent out to die slowly of radiation sickness. But even a repressive state cannot obliterate desire – neither Offred's nor that of the two men on which her future hangs.	10		✓
BAKER. JO. The Picture Book Set against the rolling backdrop of British history from the First World War to today, this is an intimate family portrait captured in snapshots. 1st there is William, the factory lad who loses his life in Gallipoli, then his son Billy, a champion cyclist who faces the D-Day Landings on a military bicycle, followed by his crippled son Will, who becomes an Oxford academic in the 1960s, and finally his daughter Billy, an artist in contemporary London. Historical fiction	10	✓

BARNES, JULIAN. Arthur and George In late nineteenth-century Britain two men grow up in very different circumstances and with very different destinies. But as the new century begins, they are brought together by a sequence of events that made headlines at the time and resulted in a miscarriage of justice that seems uncomfortably familiar to modern readers. Historical fiction	9	✓	e-audio
BEAUMAN, SALLY The Landscape of Love The summer of 1967, in the heart of the rural Suffolk: thirteen-year-old Maisie is at her decaying family home, once a medieval abbey. Lucas, an artist and friend, is painting a portrait of Maisie and her elder sister. In turn, Maisie embarks on her own portrait of her own: she tells the story of her sisters and their lovers, of her village friend Daniel Nunn. Maisie describes evasions, betrayals, a lost England and a lost summer – The Landscape of Love grips from the 1st page.	11	✓

BENNETT, ALAN. The Uncommon Reader The Uncommon Reader is none other than HM the Queen who drifts accidentally into reading when her corgis stray into a mobile library parked at Buckingham Palace. Her reading naturally changes her world view and her relationship with people like the oleaginous prime minister and his repellent advisers. She comes to question the prescribed order of the world and loses patience with much that she has to do. In short, her reading is subversive. The consequence is, of course, surprising, mildly shocking and very funny. Contemporary fiction.	7		CD/ e-book

ELLORY, RJ. A Quiet Belief In Angels Joseph Vaughan's life has been dogged by tragedy. Growing up in the 1950s, he was at the centre of series of killings of young girls in his small rural community. Barely a teenager himself, Joseph was determined to try to protect his community and classmates from the killer. Despite banding together with his friends as ' The Guardians', he was powerless to prevent more murders - and no one was ever caught. Only after a full ten years did the nightmare end when the one of his neighbours was found hanging from a rope, with articles about the dead girls around him. Thankfully, the killings finally ceased. But the past won't stay buried - for it seems that the real murderer still lives and is killing again. And the secret of his identity lies in Joseph's own history... Contemporary fiction	8	✓	CD

ENRIGHT, ANNE. The Forgotten Waltz The Forgotten Waltz is a memory of desire: a recollection of the bewildering speed of attraction, the irreparable slip into longing. In Terenure, a pleasant suburb of Dublin, in the winter of 2009, it has snowed. Gina Moynihan, girl about town, recalls the trail of lust and happenstance that brought her to fall for ‘the love of her life’, Seán Vallely. As the city outside comes to a halt, Gina remembers the days of their affair in one hotel room or another: long afternoons made blank by bliss and denial. Now, as the silent streets and the stillness and vertigo of the falling snow make the day luminous and full of possibility, Gina walks through the weather to meet a girl she calls his ‘beautiful mistake’: Seán’s fragile, twelve-year-old daughter, Evie.	13

FALLADA, HANS. Alone in Berlin The first novel by a German author to take as its theme the small-scale domestic resistance to the National Socialists. 'Fallada's great novel, beautifully translated by the poet Michael Hofmann, evokes the daily horror of life under the Third Reich, where the venom of Nazism seeped into the very pores of society, poisoning every aspect of existence. It is a story of resistance, sly humour and hope' (Ben Macintyre The Times) Historical fiction	11		e-book
FELDMAN, ELEANOR. Scottsboro In Alabama, 1931, a posse stops a freight train and arrests nine black youths. Their crime: fighting with white boys. Then two white girls emerge from another freight car, and the cry of rape goes up. One of the girls sticks to her story. The other changes her tune, again and again. A young journalist fights to save the nine youths from the electric chair, redeem the girl who repents her lie, and make amends for her own past. Scottsboro is a novel of a shocking injustice that convulsed the nation and reverberated around the world. HARRIS, JOANNE. The Lollipop Shoes Yanne and Annie are living a lie. They are really Vianne and Anouk Rocher, and they are existing under assumed names, trying to fit into a society where magic has no place. After a terrifying brush with social services, Vianne is convinced that any hint of magic will mean her children are taken away from her, and as a result, spells are forbidden. Anouk has become increasingly resentful, feeling that her “real” mother is slipping away. And a new problem is about to arise in the person of Zozie de l'Alba, a young woman who is everything that Vianne once was — with one exception: beautiful, powerful, and utterly ruthless, Zozie is a scavenger, stealing identities. HENNESSEY, PATRICK. The Junior Officers' Reading Club. Hennessey's memoir of his years in the army, from new recruit to youngest captain, exposes a young soldier's attitude to war as an adrenalin high. "Towards the end he begins to understand that war is not all glory, but all hell. By the time he leaves the Army he has been transformed from a pretentious young cadet into a wiser, less cocksure officer. In watching this transformation we are taken on our own journey from irritation to comprehension and finally to respect. It is this journey that makes Hennessey's book, which in the end is surprisingly thoughtful, honest and compelling, worth reading." MAY, STEPHEN Life! Death! Prizes! Billy's Mum is dead. He knows - because he reads about it in magazines - that people die every day in ways that are more random and tragic and stupid than hers, but for nineteen-year-old Billy and his little brother, Oscar, their mother's death in a bungled street robbery is the most random and tragic and stupid thing that could possibly have happened to them. Now Billy must be both mother and father to Oscar, and despite what his well-meaning aunt, the PTA mothers, the social services and Oscar's own prodigal father all think, he knows he is more than up to the job, thank you very much. The boys' new world, where bedtimes are arbitrary, tidiness is optional and healthy home-cooked meals pile up uneaten in the freezer, is built out of chaos and fierce love, but it's also a world that teeters perilously on its axis. And as Billy's obsession with his mother's missing killer grows, he risks losing sight of the one thing that really matters... Funny, bittersweet and unforgettable, Life! Death! Prizes! is a story of grief, resilience and brotherly love. N.B. Lots of strong language which may offend.	15

MILLER, MADELEINE The Song of Achilles Greece in the age of Heroes. Patroclus, an awkward young prince, has been exiled to Phthia to live in the shadow of King Peleus and his strong, beautiful son, Achilles. By all rights their paths should never cross, but Achilles takes the shamed prince as his friend, and as they grow into young men skilled in the arts of war and medicine, their bond blossoms into something far deeper — despite the displeasure of Achilles's mother Thetis, a cruel sea goddess. But then word comes that Helen of Sparta has been kidnapped. Torn between love and fear for his friend, Patroclus journeys with Achilles to Troy, little knowing that the years that follow will test everything they hold dear.	12	✓

MORRISON, TONI. Beloved. In the troubled years following the Civil War, the spirit of a murdered child haunts the Ohio home of a former slave, but Sethe finds the haunting oddly comforting for the spirit is that of her own dead baby, never named, thought of only as Beloved. Beloved is a dense, complex novel that yields up its secrets one by one. As Morrison takes us deeper into Sethe's history and her memories, the circumstances of her baby's death start to make terrible sense. And as past meets present in the shape of a mysterious young woman about the same age as Sethe's daughter would have been, the narrative builds inexorably to its powerful, painful conclusion. Historical fiction	12 1 long overdue	✓

MORRISON, TONI. A Mercy. The young slave girl, Florens, is given to an Anglo-Dutch smallholder, Jacob, in payment of a debt. Told in the voices of the different members of Jacob's household, the novel examines the roots of racism going back to slavery's earliest days, providing glimpses of the various religious practices of the time, and showing the relationship between men and women in early America. As the women journey toward self-enlightenment, Morrison often describes their progress in biblical cadences, and by the end of this novel, the reader understands the significance of the title, "a mercy." Historical fiction	12

STEWART, MICHAEL King Crow King Crow by Michael Stewart is the story of a lonely, neglected boy, dragged from one Salford estate (and consequently school) to another by his mother, who, since the departure of his father, has lurched between numerous failed relationships, all with women, and appears to suffer from clinical depression. Clearly an intelligent boy, Paul doesn't make friends easily: he's only really interested in birds, relates all people to them, and struggles to understand why everyone else wouldn't be interested in them too. His social awkwardness and atypical thought processes mean he doesn't do well at school, and his unstable home life doesn't help - so he's a serial truant and spends lessons drawing pictures: he's worked out that in most of his schools, under-achieving isn't a problem if you're quiet and keep your pen on the paper.	10		e-book

VANN, DAVID. Legend of a Suicide Throughout his life, Roy returns to the moment of his father's suicide, gripped by its memory and the shadow it casts over his small-town boyhood, describing with poignant, mercurial wit his parents' woeful marriage and inevitable divorce, their kindnesses and weaknesses, the absurd and comic turning-points of his past. Finally, in Legend of a Suicide, Roy lays his father's ghost to rest. But not before he exacts a gruelling, exhilarating revenge. Revolving around a fatally misconceived adventure deep in the wilderness of Alaska, this is a remarkably tender story of survival and disillusioned love. Contemporary fiction.	12

ZOLA. EMILE. Theresa Raquin Emile Zola (1840-1902) was an influential French novelist, the most important example of the literary school of naturalism, and a major figure in the political liberalization of France. More than half of his novels were part of a set of 20 collectively known as Les Rougon-Macquart. Set in France's Second Empire, the series traces the 'hereditary' influence of violence, alcoholism, and prostitution in two branches of a single family: the respectable (that is, legitimate) Rougons and the disreputable (illegitimate) Macquarts, for five generations. His works include Therese Raquin (1867), Germinal (1885), Abbé Mouret's Transgression (1886), The Three Cities, Part I (1894), The Three Cities, Part II (1896), The Three Cities, Part III (1898), Fruitfulness (1900), and A Love Episode (1905).	12		e-audio
